

10 Most Used Job Boards

These are not the only job boards, but receive the most search traffic by job seekers.

1. LinkedIn
2. Indeed
3. Monster
4. CareerBuilder
5. Glassdoor
6. SimplyHired
7. ZipRecruiter
8. Dice
9. Naukri
10. Careerjet

These job boards offer a variety of features, including job listings, company profiles, and resume posting. They also offer a variety of tools to help job seekers find the right job, such as search filters, daily email alerts for job openings, etc.

When choosing a job board, it is important to consider the following factors:

- Specific type of jobs you are looking for
- Location of the jobs you are looking for
- Features and tools that are important to you
- Cost of the job board (I would avoid paying for job boards, as free ones offer similar value)
- Relevancy of jobs & also how recent they were posted (often times jobs expire but remain posted online until they are removed)

It's important to remember that no single job board will have all of the jobs you are looking for. It is a good strategy to use multiple job boards to increase your chances of finding the right job.
